I cannot express a better wish for this Christmas than that we think of the poor and resolve, with that thought, to enrich the rich no longer as we direct our efforts towards the relief of the needy. The government is doing everything within its means to achieve the greatest good for the greatest number; private initiative must do the rest. We can resolve nothing better in the spirit of Christmas than to be magnanimous to our disinherited class.

Quezon Will Talk Defense By In America

Philippines President Given Warm Welcome Here

ROOSEVELT TO CALL TRADE MEET

Problems Vital For Both Island And U.S.A.

By MALCOLM ROSHOLT

"I am going to Washington for the purpose of discussing with the War and other Departments questions of defense and economics of mutual interest to our countries," declared President Manuel L. Quezon, Chief Executive of the Commonwealth of the Philippine Islands on his arrival here yesterday by board the Empress of Canada.

The President's party including the Hon J Vito Natividad of Justice in Manila, General Douglas MacArthur special Adviser to the Philippine Department of War, Major A. Smith-Hutton of the Philippine Army and also to the President, and Daughters Aurora and Zenaida Quezon.

Mrs Quezon will follow her husband to Washington on the next S. S. R. from the Empress of Japan, which will arrive in Manila about three weeks from now. At the present time Mrs Quezon is acting as hostess to Papal Delegate Cardinal Michael J. O'Doherty in the executive mansion.

To Call Trade Meet

Asked to comment on his forthcoming visit in the American capital, President Quezon explained that a trade conference between the United States and the Philippines will soon be called by President Roosevelt. "It is my purpose to discuss the scope of the conference," he said, "and when it should be called."

Although President Quezon did not go into detail on the projected conference, he indicated that there were questions of trade and defense which had an important bearing on the future relations between the United States and the Philippines. He also indicated that Quezon were of equal importance as far as the Philippines were concerned.

President Quezon denied that his departure from Manila at this time was connected with any desire to avoid the Eucharistic Congress. "My wife remained particularly for this reason," he said. "I was forced to leave early as I must be in Washington as soon as possible and there is not much choice about boats now owing to the difficulties of the maritime strike."

Converted In 1928

Asked if he were a Catholic the President of the new commonwealth replied. "That's an old story. I was converted to Catholicism in 1928. No one living Manila at the time I speak was in no way connected with the Converts. I should like to have remained."

Questioned as to the presence of General MacArthur in his party, President Quezon said it was "natural for him to be along." He pointed out that "as he was a special adviser to the Army that he would naturally be interested in our negotiations in Washington in other words to be accompanying me both in the capacity as adviser

Sloan Refuses To Take Onus In U. S. Strike

Says General Motors Not Responsible In Deadlock

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—(Reuters)—In the course of a statement today addressed jointly to the public and to the loyal workers of the General Motors Corporation, Mr Alfred P. Sloan, the president, denied that the Corporation was responsible for the breakdown of negotiations for a settlement of the automobile strike.

Mr Sloan stated that over 160,000 workers desired to return to work.

Meanwhile a report from Detroit, Michigan revealed that about 40,000 employees had resumed work in 10 General Motors plants which had been shut down, it was said, to a shortage of materials and not to strikes.

Mr Sloan was publicly rebuked yesterday by President Roosevelt and Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, for his refusal to confer with motor union and strike leaders in Washington.

Diplomatic and consular representatives in Shanghai and prominent Chinese residents were invited. The list of those invited is given at the conclusion of this article.

On behalf of the National Government Mayor Wu presented to President Quezon the Order of the Brilliant Jade. The Mayor said:

"By order of the National Government of the Republic of China, I have been commanded to confer upon you, President Quezon, with the decoration of the Order of the Brilliant Jade, the highest honor that our Government confers on the head of a friendly state.

Presented With Decoration

"It is therefore with the greatest pleasure that I now invest you, President Quezon, with the decoration—which I trust you will accept as a symbol of the very friendly and cordial relations existing between the people of the Philippine Commonwealth and the Republic of China."

President Quezon replied

Acceptance Speech Of President Quezon

Your Honor, Mayor Wu, Ladies and Gentlemen:

This high honor is one on the part of the National Government of the Republic of China conferring upon me the decoration of the Order of the Brilliant Jade, the highest order, and to which precedent of the honor that bestowed upon me, was because I take it as a token of the warm and kind feelings the government of the Republic to the friendship shown by my government and my people towards the people of China. In fact it is even more than that. It is a symbol of our long association reaching the school history marked by amity and co-operation between our two peoples. QUEZON REPORTS EXECUTIVE JOB IS 'JUST SO-SO

President Manuel L. Quezon, overnight visitor from the Philippines en route to Washington D.C., was pleased to learn on board the Empress of Canada that Chinese and foreign dignitaries were planning to entertain him in a big way here. When told that local opinion considered him the "man for the job," he smiled.

Turning the tables on him, one newshawk asked him "how it felt to be President?"

"Ah, there my young man," he replied jocularly, "you have asked me a question that's a little hard to answer. He stroked his chin and thought a second. "Some times are pretty nice and others not—sometimes it's not so nice."

At the dinner table, a short time afterward, he was heard to repeat the question about his job as President. A roar of laughter went up. At the President's table were both General Douglas MacArthur and the Hon J Vito, Filipino Minister of Justice.

Million Now Homeless; Damage Put At $400 Million

NEW YORK, Jan 28—(Reuters)—Nearly 1,000,000 persons have been rendered homeless through the floods according to the latest estimates.

The number of deaths is now approaching 500, while the material damage is also mounting, the latest assessment placing it at over $400,000,000.

So far 120 bodies have been recovered from the flood waters at Louisville Kentucky, one of the worst-hit of the larger cities visited by the floods.

The level of the waters is now beginning to fall at Louisville for the first time for a week as the bulk of the Ohio river sweeps towards the Mississippi Valley where the Department of War, acting on instructions from President Roosevelt, has completed preparations to evacuate 500,000 inhabitants as a

Hope Of Ugaki Forming New Cabinet Slim

Army Remains Adamant; General Seen Giving Up

TOKYO, Jan. 28 — (Reuters) — Because of the Army's continued refusal to support War Minister in the Cabinet now being formed by General Kazushige Ugaki, the prospect of supporting under Japan is today still without a government.

After repeated failures to break the Army's opposition towards him, General Ugaki is now sitting tight, apparently believing that time may offer a favorable solution to the Army leaders, however, are hinting that General Ugaki will soon give up the idea of forming a cabinet.

They declare that any attempts by the new Premier to form matters would be as useless "as stirring hardening concrete with chop sticks."

Meanwhile, they continue to refuse to give the exact reasons for their opposition to General Ugaki although they vaguely assert that their attitude is the result of careful deliberations and is for the sake of achieving complete discipline and unity in the ranks of the army.

Army Adamant

TOKYO, Jan 28.—(Domei)—Prospects of success for Gen. Kazushige Ugaki in forming a cabinet dwindled rapidly tonight as the Army persisted in balking the stubborn efforts of the Premier-designate.

Expectations that the astute statesman would succeed in finding a way out of the four-day deadlock caused by the military's adamant stand suffered a severe setback as War Minister Count Hisaichi Terauchi intimated that the Army would not change its attitude.

"I am continuing my endeavors to seek a solution in the hope that I may thus serve my Emperor for the last time," Gen. Ugaki told reporters in a brief interview at 7.30 o'clock tonight.

The Premier-designate emphasized that the situation was most serious and required time to compose.

Admission that all means of coming to terms with the Army has been exhausted "for the time being" was made at 6 o'clock tonight by Mr Hiranori Imada, chief of staff to Gen. Ugaki in the Cabinet-forming task.

It was Mr Imada who, this morning was informed by Gen Terauchi that it would be futile for Gen. Ugaki to meet with the 3 highest officers in the Army to seek a compromise.

Mr Imada also conveyed to the Premier-designate the view that "it would be useless for a peace-making mission to be sent, as the situation had been aggravated."

"But I believe that the Premier feels that it is absolute ly

SABATINO DE

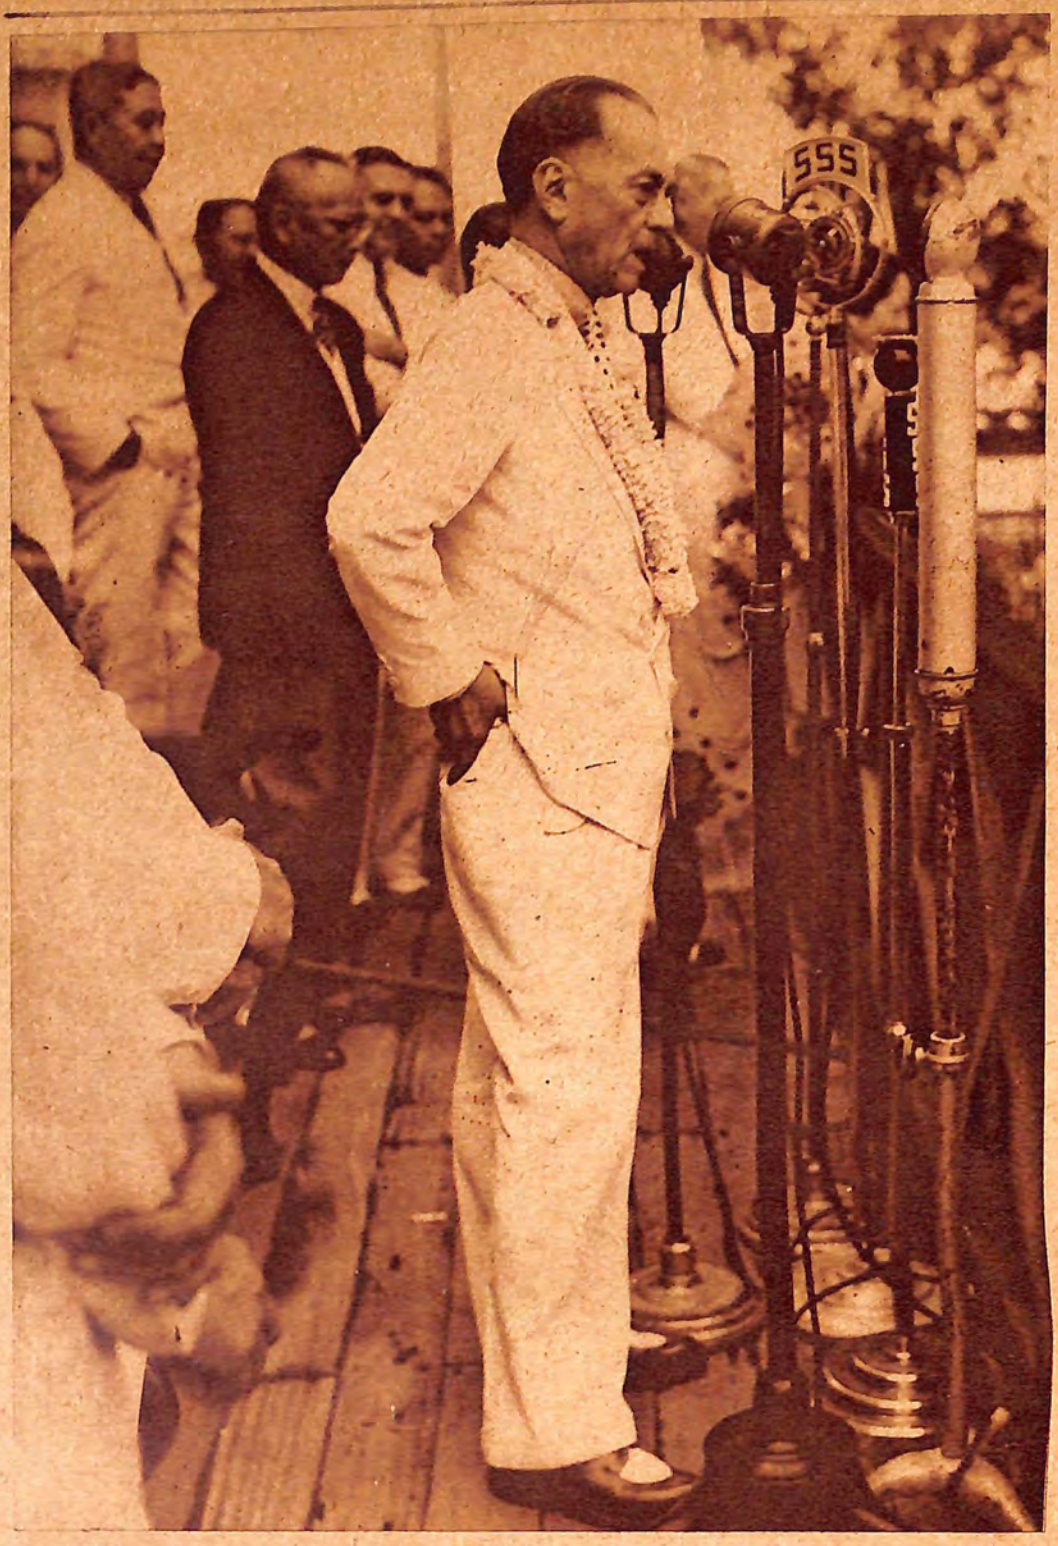

LA VANGUARDIA

MANILA, I. F.

SALUDADO con el himno nacional y recibido con una entusiasta manifestación popular al regresar a Filipinas después de meses de ausencia, el Presidente Quezon aparece retratado aquí poco después de desembarcar en el 'President's Landing'. En primer término se ven a la Sra. de Osmeña, y la Sra. de Quezon y detrás al Secretario Quirino y el General Paulino Santos. En el extremo izquierdo, al lado del Presidente, está su ayudante de campo, el Comandante Arsenio Natividad.

The National Anthem struck its first resounding chords, bringing the presidential party to a halt at the gate of Malacañang Palace, to observe the patriotic gesture of standing at attention either in the military salute or the civilian's gesture of reverence. To the left and right of President Quezon are Mrs. Quezon, Major Nieto, General Guillermo Francisco and Major Nieto. In the background newspaper photographers hurry to and fro for better camera shots.

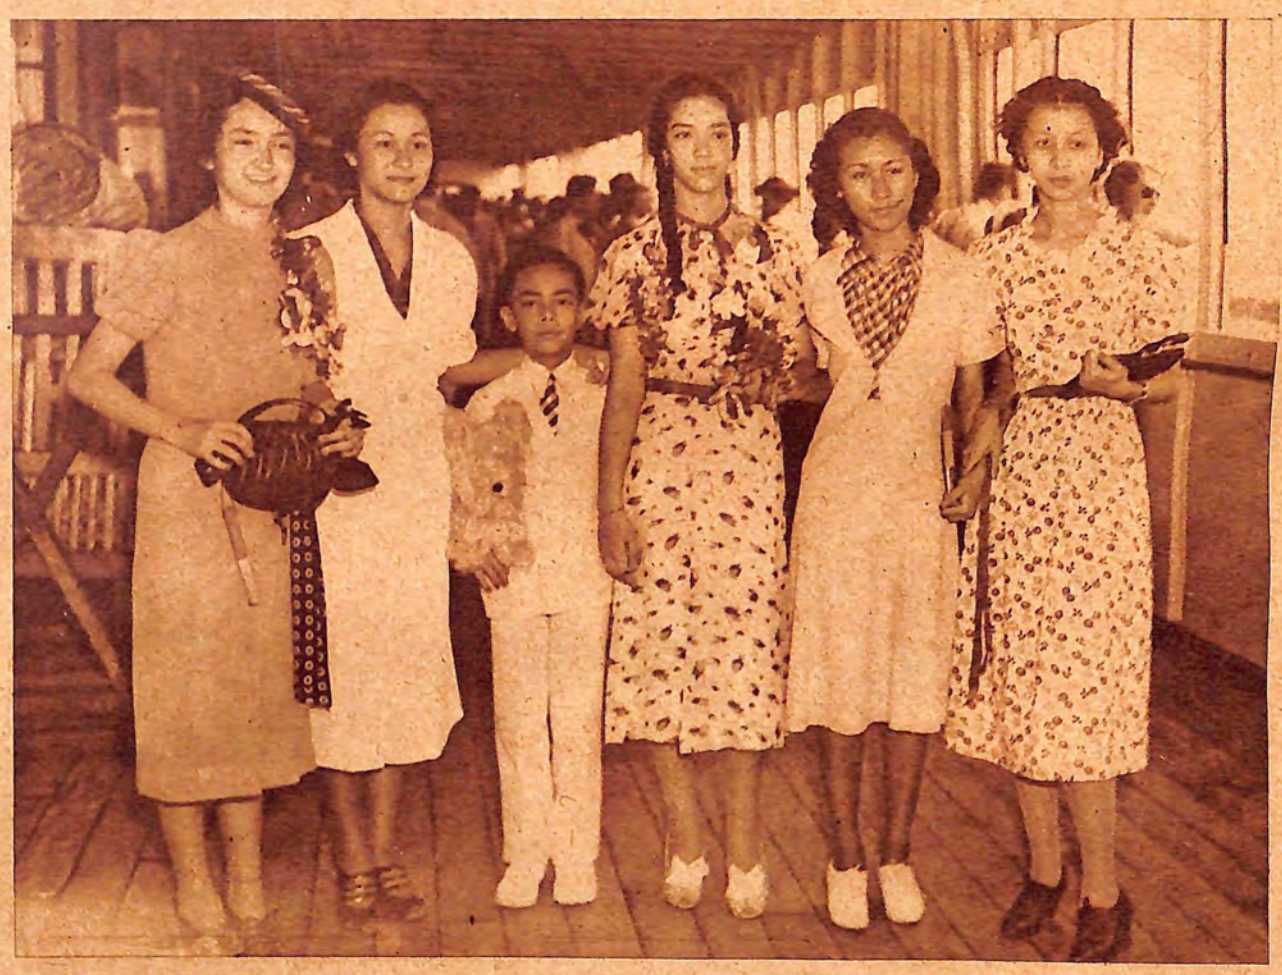

The general view, below, gives the reader a faint idea of the immense crowds that gathered to welcome the presidential family and the committee of trade experts. Lining both sides of the driveway were R. O. T. C. cadets from every university and college in the city. Leading the automobiles is the Philippine Army cavalry, and in the background the Manila Hotel, surrounded by the dark green of trees.

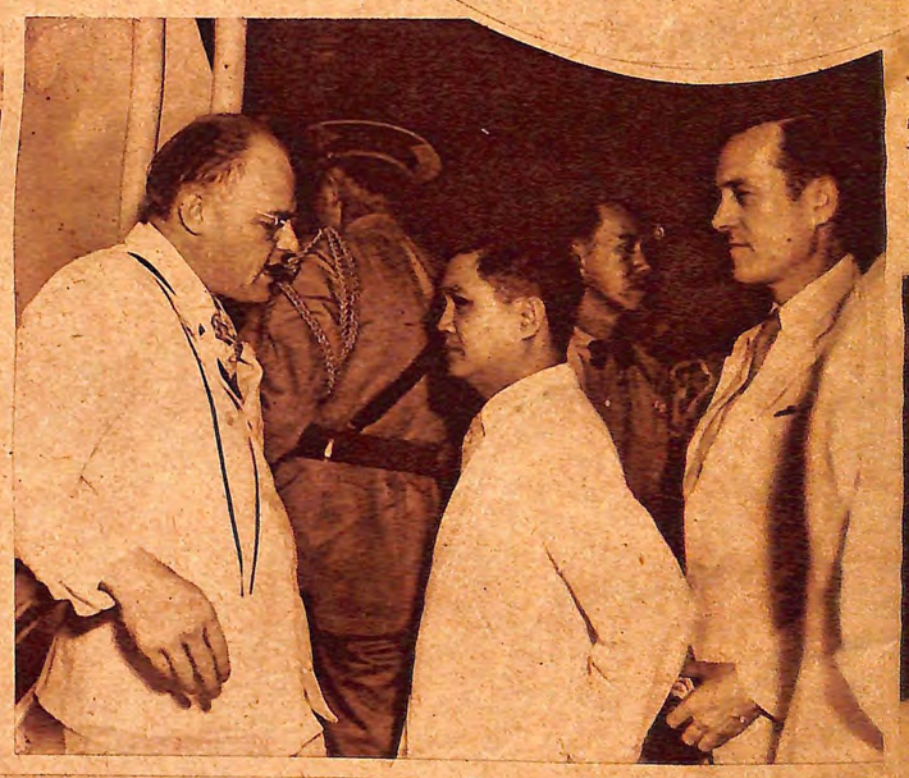

President and Mrs. Manuel L. Quezon once again returned home. With them are Majors Natividad and Nieto. From the balcony, left, the president assured the thousands gathered at Malacañan that the ₱100,000,000 acquired through his efforts would be used to benefit the masses. The President and Vice-president Osmeña, inset, confer on the threshoid of the palace.

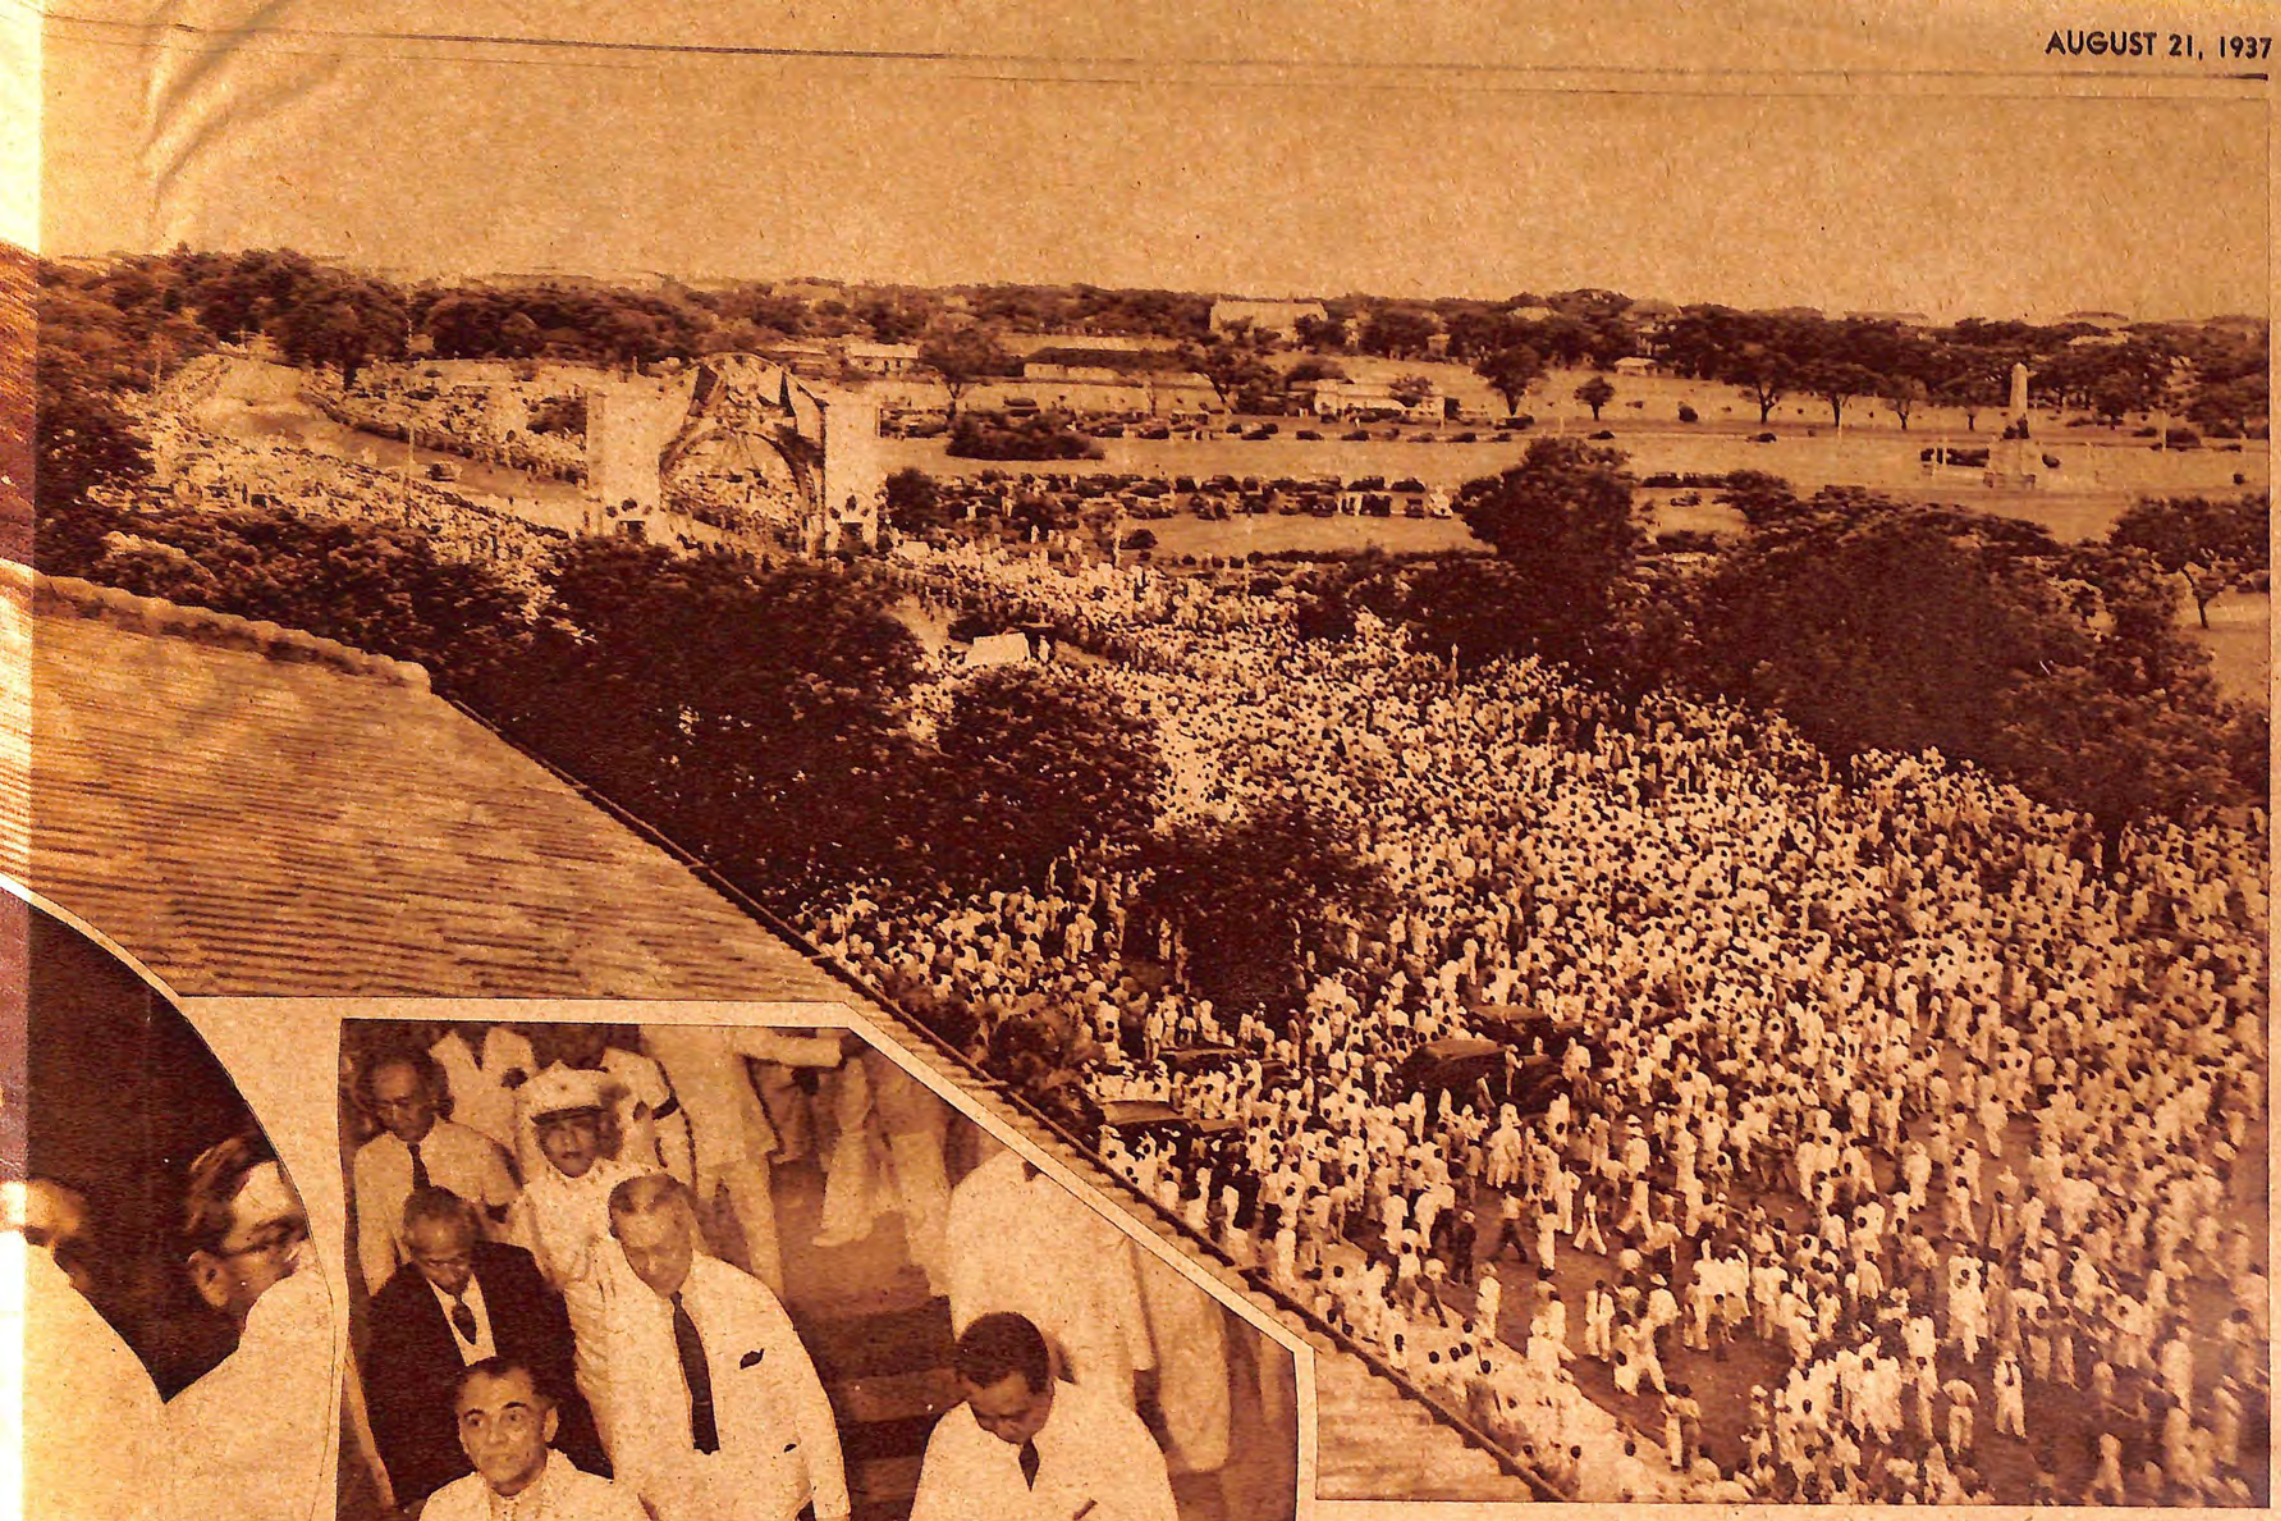

With the returning president came his family. Aurora Quezon, Nena Fabella, Nonong Quezon, Zenaida Quezon, Evelyn Fabella and Miss Alunan were lined up for a "welcome" picture before the presidential party left the s. s. President Hoover, luxury liner of the Dollar line. The entire party was brought by launch to Admiral's Landing, and disembarked on a specially-made float and gangplank, right; in the background are a few of the launches that escorted the Hoover in through the breakwater. The fluvial parade was one of the loveliest and most orderly seen on Manila Bay.

The welcoming parade was the longest seen in the city, reaching from President's Landing to Malacañan Palace along Ayala Boulevard. In the background is the arch erected to welcome the family home. No untoward incidents were recorded that day on the city's police blotters. President Quezon, accompanied by Secretary Quirino, Vice-president Osmeña, Speaker Montilla, Secretary Torres and Major Natividad, left are seen mounting the palace's historically famous stairway. A few moments later, after a refreshing drink of cold water, the president appeared upon the balcony to address the crowds that had gathered.

Secretary of Justice ulo, left, welcomed embers of the committee of experts to Manila, mong them William A. oyd and Owen Dawon.

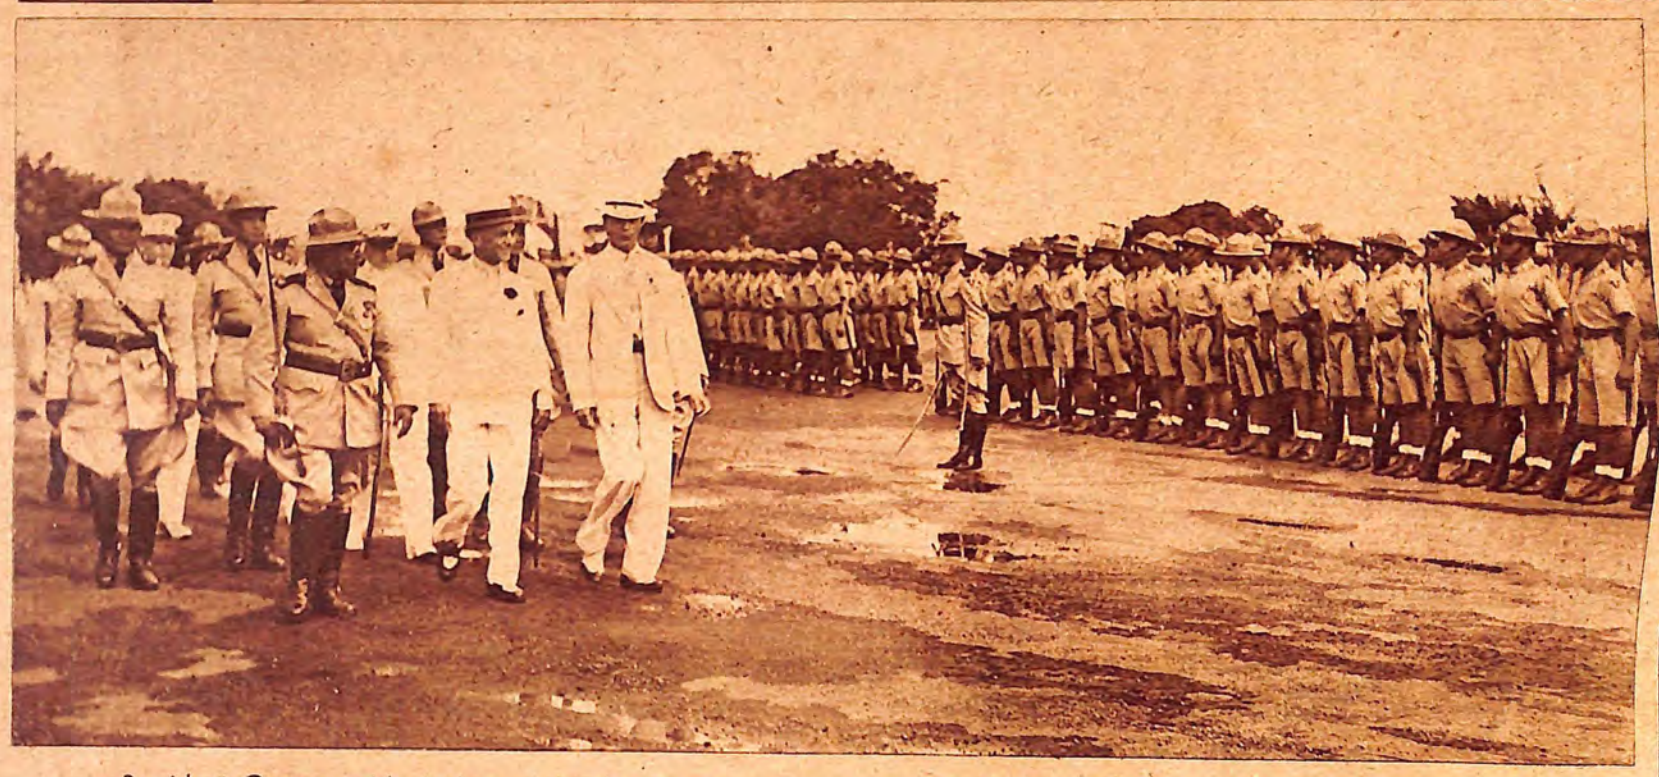

Mrs. Aurora Quezon was welcomed at the ship before the transfer to the launch by the most prominent women in the city. Among those seen in the picture are Mrs. Jose Zulueta, Mrs. Elpidio Quirino, Mrs. Antonio de las Alas, and Mrs. Jorge Vargas as they listened to an account of the trip. The usual patriotic gestures were observed by the President, a stickler for form, as the party stood at attention, right, to the strains of the National Anthem. Beside the president is Ambassador John V. MacMurray, chairman of the committee of trade experts; behind him may be seen Secretary Quirino, Mrs. Sofia de Veyra, companion to Mrs. Quezon, Zenaida Quezon and Major Natividad.

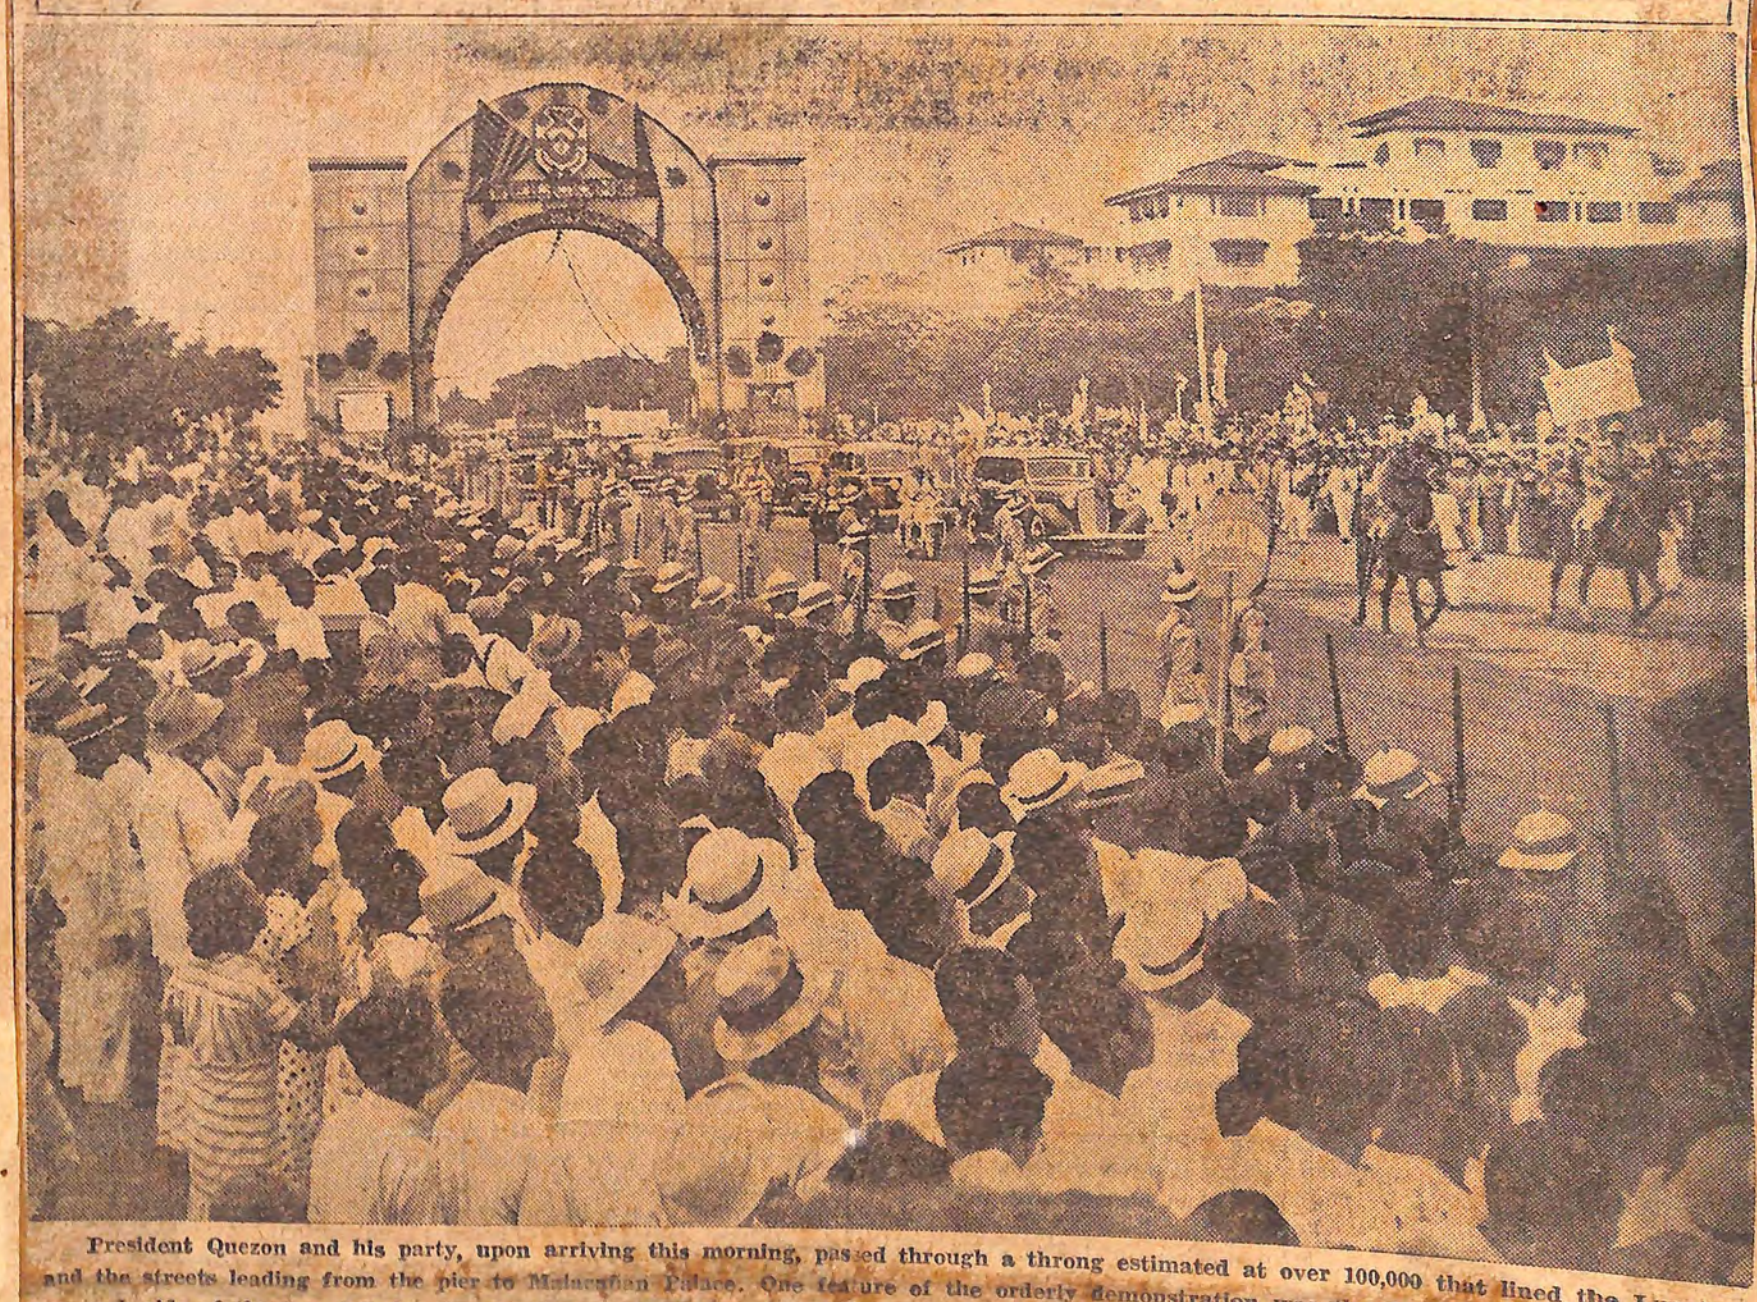

The joint committee of experts tailed to study Philippine-Ame trade relations had only one pi taken of them as a body: Dean rado Benitez, William A. Lloyd, Domeratsky, Assemblyman Manue xas, Frank Waring, Floor Leader E. Romero, Chairman John Va MacMurray, Joseph Jacobs, C Donald MacDonald, Joaquin M. de, Ben Dorfman, George Luth Owen Dawson and Benito Razon. retary of Justice Yulo returned t Philippines ahead of the committe fore the picture was taken.

President Greeted By Immense Crowd On Way To Malacañan

President Quezon and his party, upon arriving this morning, passed through a throng estimated at over 100,000 that lined the Luneta and the streets leading from the pier to Malacañan Palace. One feature of the orderly demonstration was the double line of cadets, one on each side of the lane left for the presidential cars, extending all the way from the pier to the palace. Photo shows the president and his party at the moment of passing under one of the arches erected on the Luneta. Herald 8-16-37

ALL QUIET ON THE TOAST FRONT

Those who looked for a good battle between President Quezon and High Commissioner McNutt, as a result of the latter's circulars on precedence, including the order in which toasts should be offered, were disappointed when the President called on the High Commissioner Tuesday morning, the High Commissioner returned the call Wednesday morning, and everything appeared lovely. In the above picture, taken the day after President Quezon's return to Manila, the representatives of the American and Philippine governments are greeting each other like long lost brothers.

From the balcony of the Palace at Malacañan, the President faced a big visible audience (top and right) and a much bigger unseen group listening by radio. In part he said:

"There is a saying that a man is known by what he does... When I accepted the nomination for the Presidency, one of my promises was for the happiness of the people...

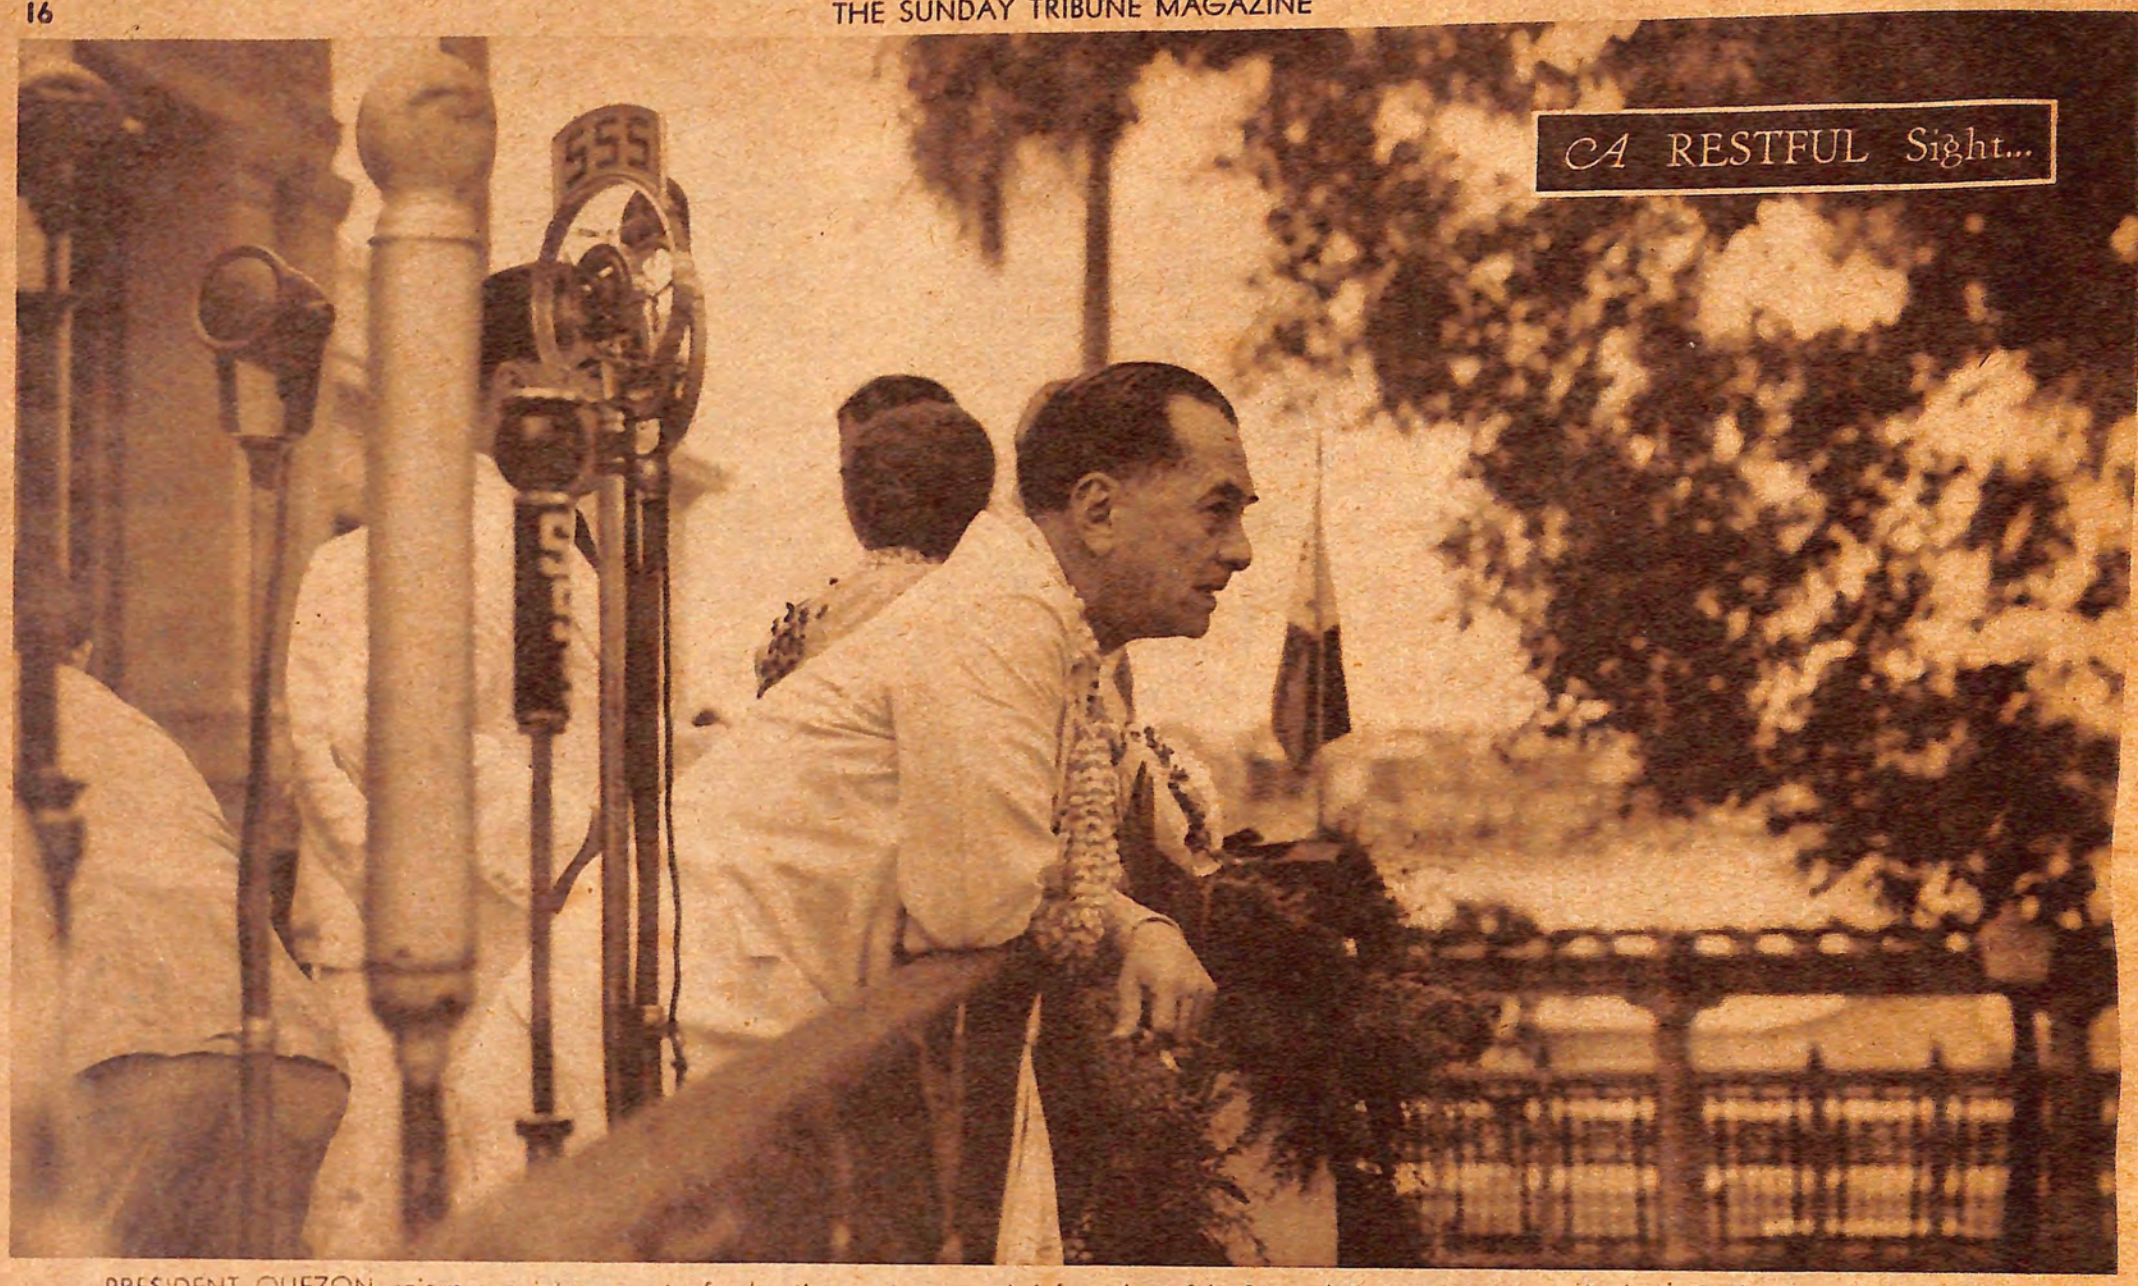

"The purposes of my trips are for the good of the country.

"In the first trip I brought back home the Jones Law, in the second the Tydings-McDuffie Act, and now I bring home money (₱100,000,000) to the people..."

He explained that part of the money will be spent in purchasing the big haciendas, part in raising the wages and part in opening schools wherever necessary.

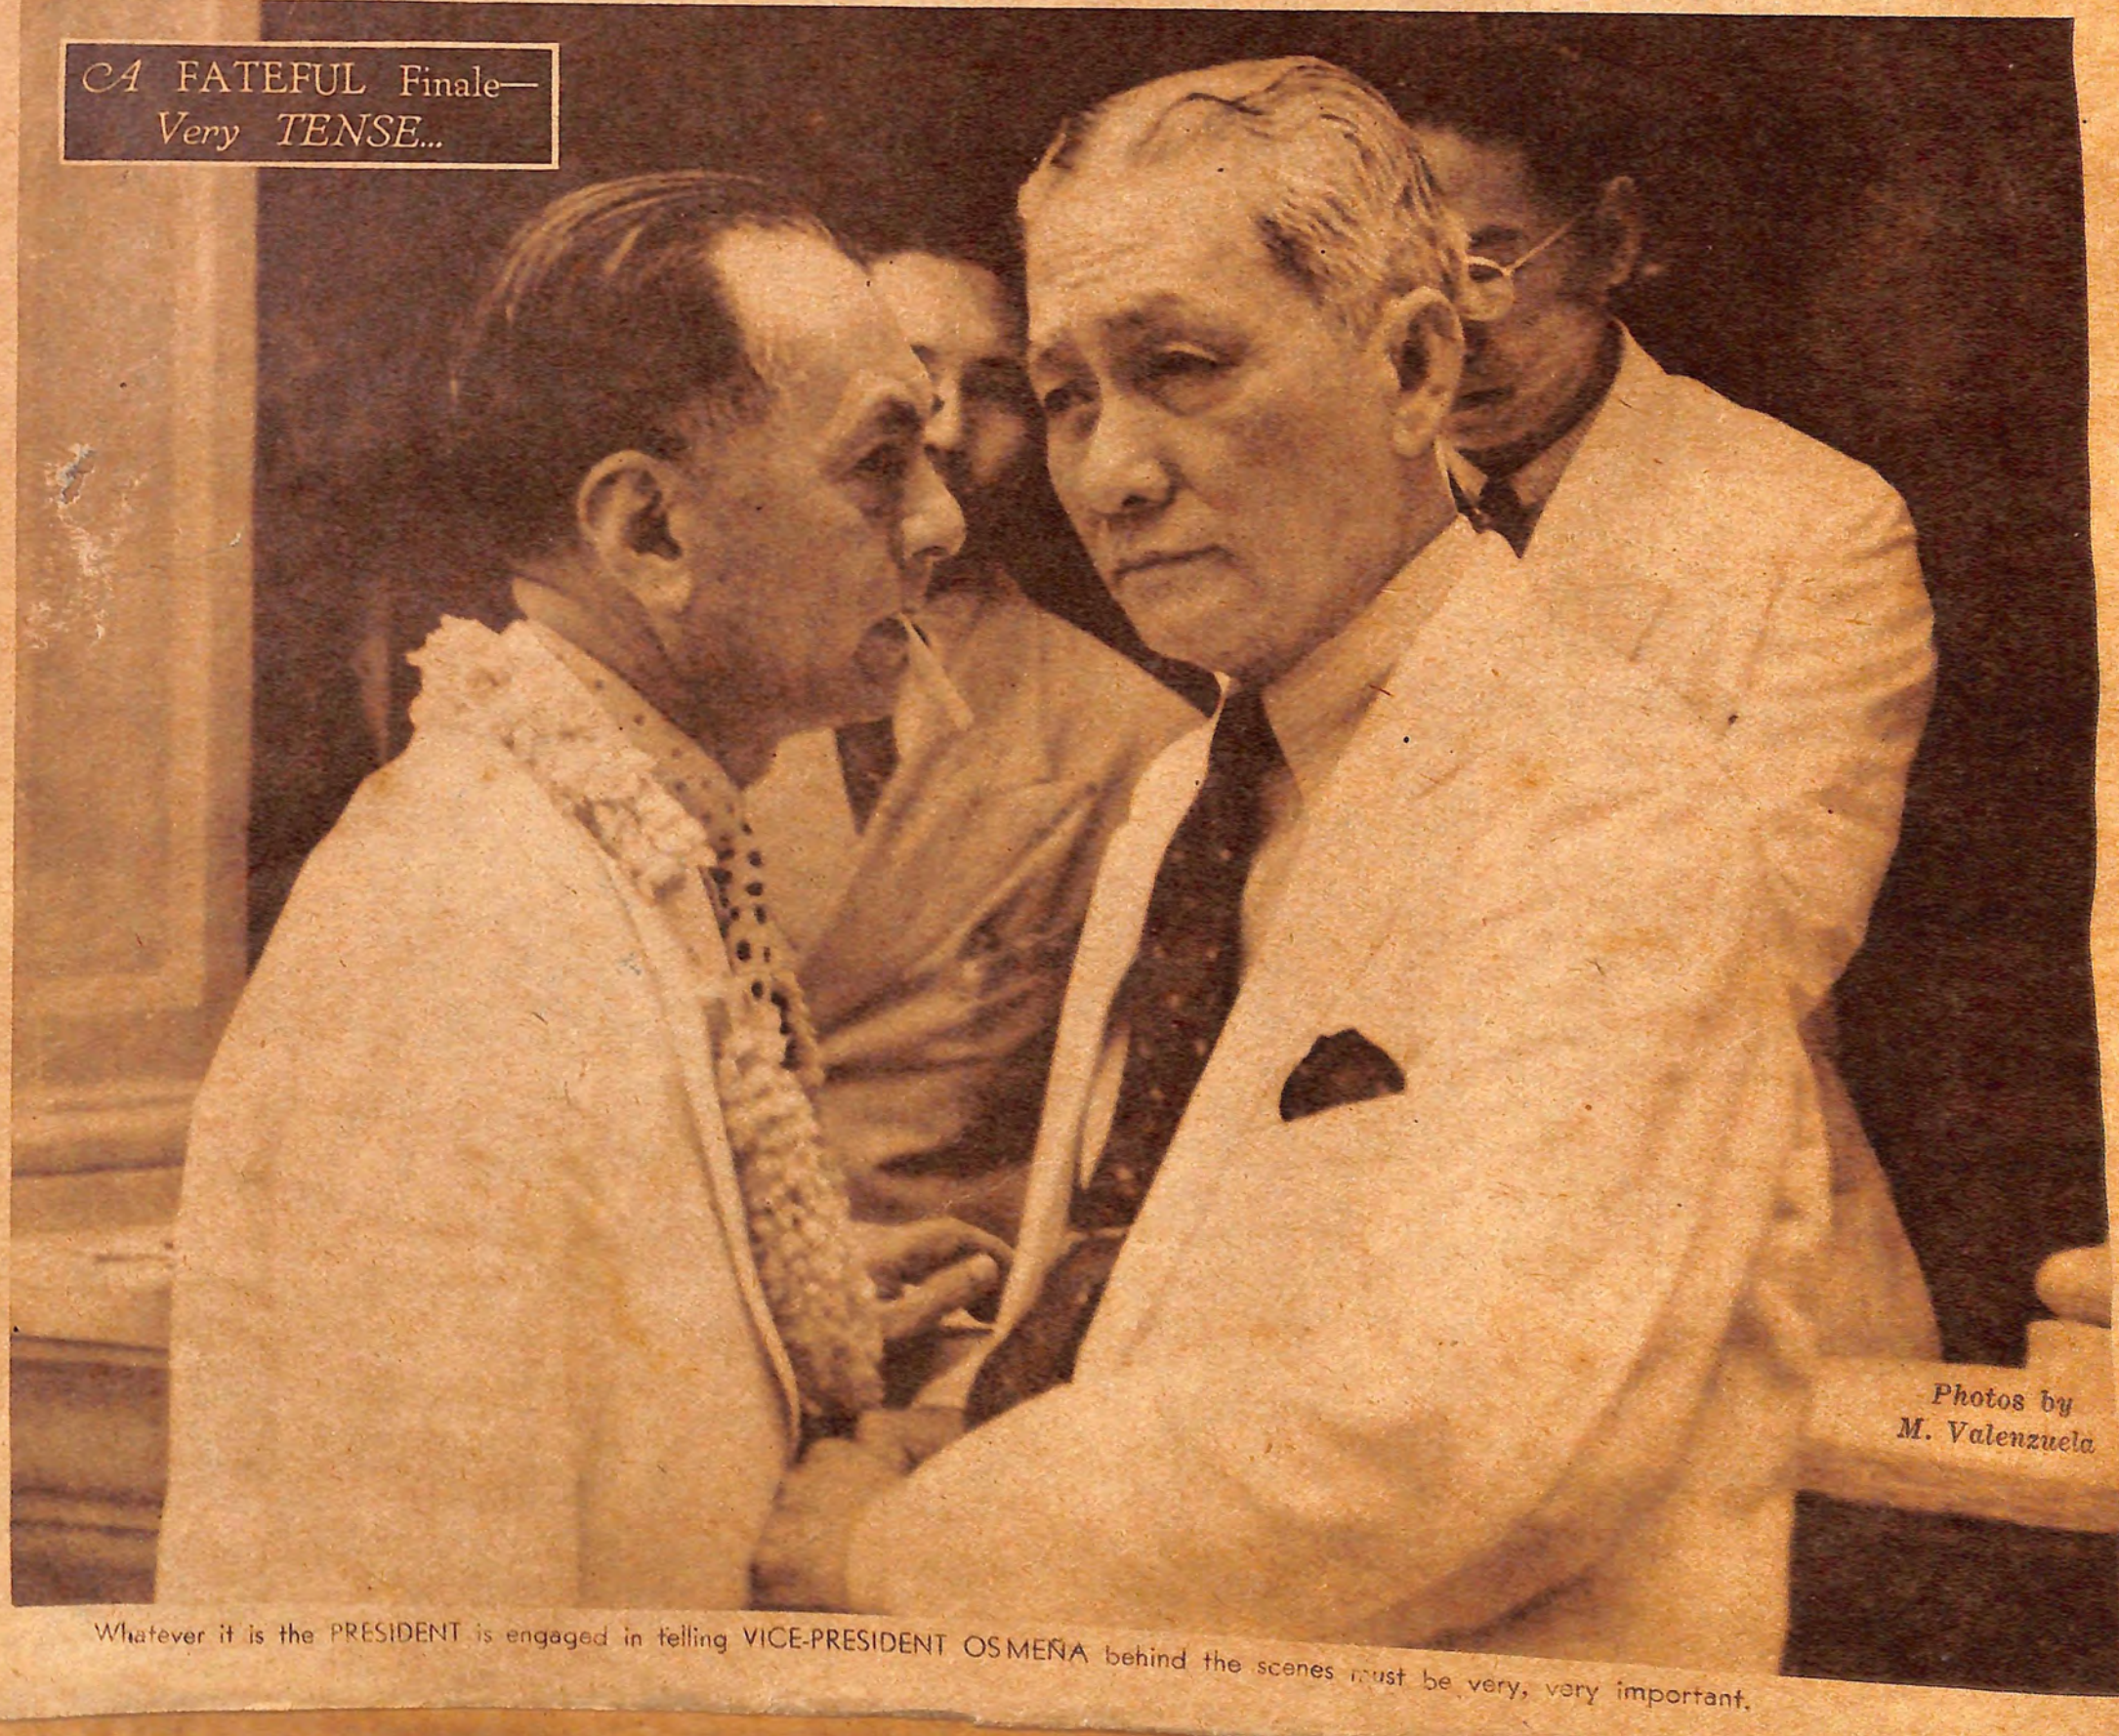

He announced the raise in the minimum wages of Manila workingmen to ₱1.25 and of provincial workingmen to ₱1.

Aling Mameng's Big Day — Today's Story In Pictures —

By Yay Panlilio of the Herald

Herald 8-17-37

'Way back in the toddling days of two little girl babies, a mutual cousin of both the President and Mrs. Quezon took them into her loving hands and, directly and indirectly, ruled them ever since.

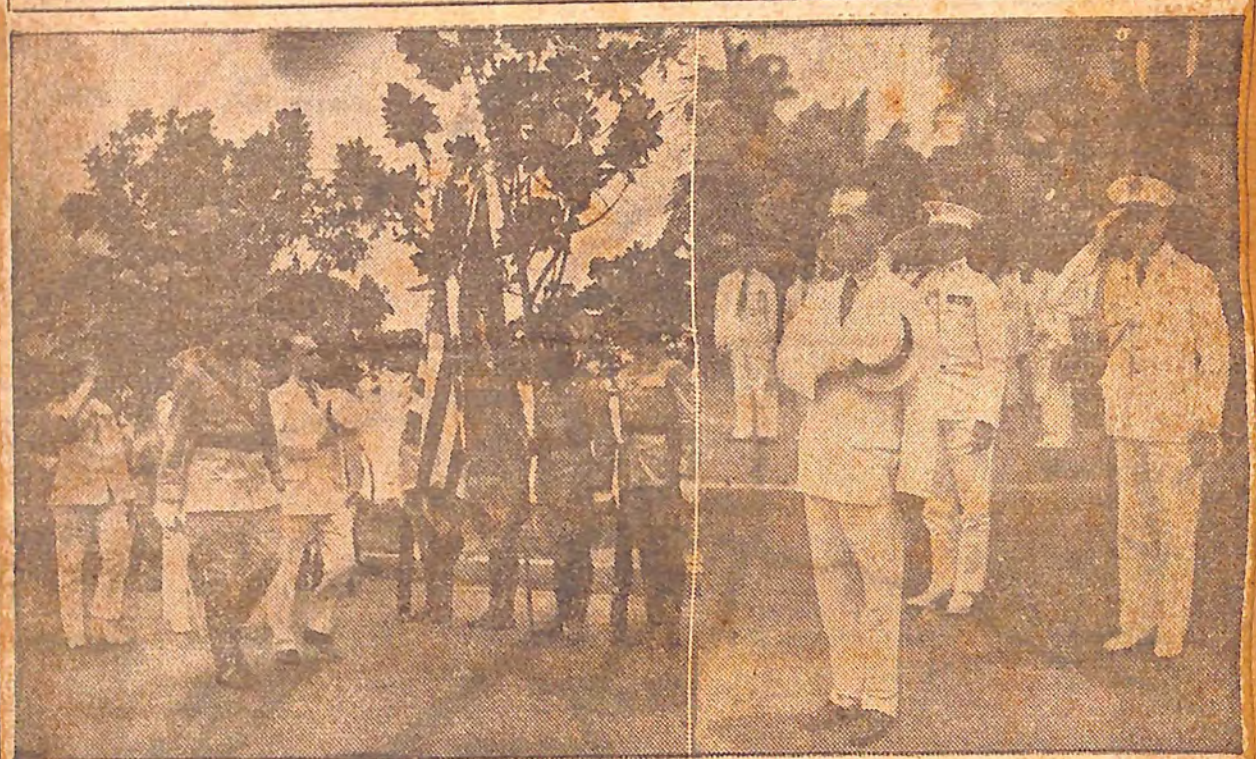

For this little woman, Carmen Peña, the two girls made a beeline. A new suite and innumerable doorways and halls were confusing, but it was an old game to Zenaida, who doubled back on her tracks like lightning.

There she caught Aling Mameng, and delivered forthwith a kiss saved all the way across two oceans. And a kiss saved by the very young for the very old, any place in this world, is "dern" sweet.

Mrs. Sofia de Veyra leads the kids to food and drink. The sandwiches were tiny—but there were plenty of them. Aurora: the shortest route between two points is a straight line

It's the same route she took when her eyes lit on Aling Mameng. And the bear hug she gave smothered the small wisp of a woman, whose eyes clouded with tears as her face screwed up like a child's. It was Aling Mameng's big day.

Nada tiene que ver con la guerra

La gente que pasa por el puente de Sta. Cruz ha estado pensando, intrigada, en si la barca que aparece en esta fotografia se está cargando o descargando para algunas de las personas envueltas en el conflicto en China. Una investigacion demuestra que la barca se está preparando para la parada fluvial que se verificará mañana, a la noche, por el cumpleaños del Presidente Quezon. Habrá un numero de barcas iluminadas en esta parada. Por que el edificio de la Compañia de Telefonos de Larga Distancia aparece en el fondo, es otra cosa que queda por investigar. Acaso el Comandante J. E. H. Stevenot, gerente de dicha compañia tenga algo que ver con la procesion fluvial nocturna. La Vanguardia 8-18-37

"Give LABOR its DUE"

ILOILO on August 25 formally became a city with its inauguration and the induction of its first mayor, Ramon F. Campos, into office.

President Quezon, attending the inauguration, found occasion to say a few things in the clearing house of the sugar industry in the south and in the presence of Ambassador John van Antwerp MacMurray. Said the President in part:

"We must cooperate and find means of improving the lot of the working classes, particularly in the sugar provinces where wages must be raised.

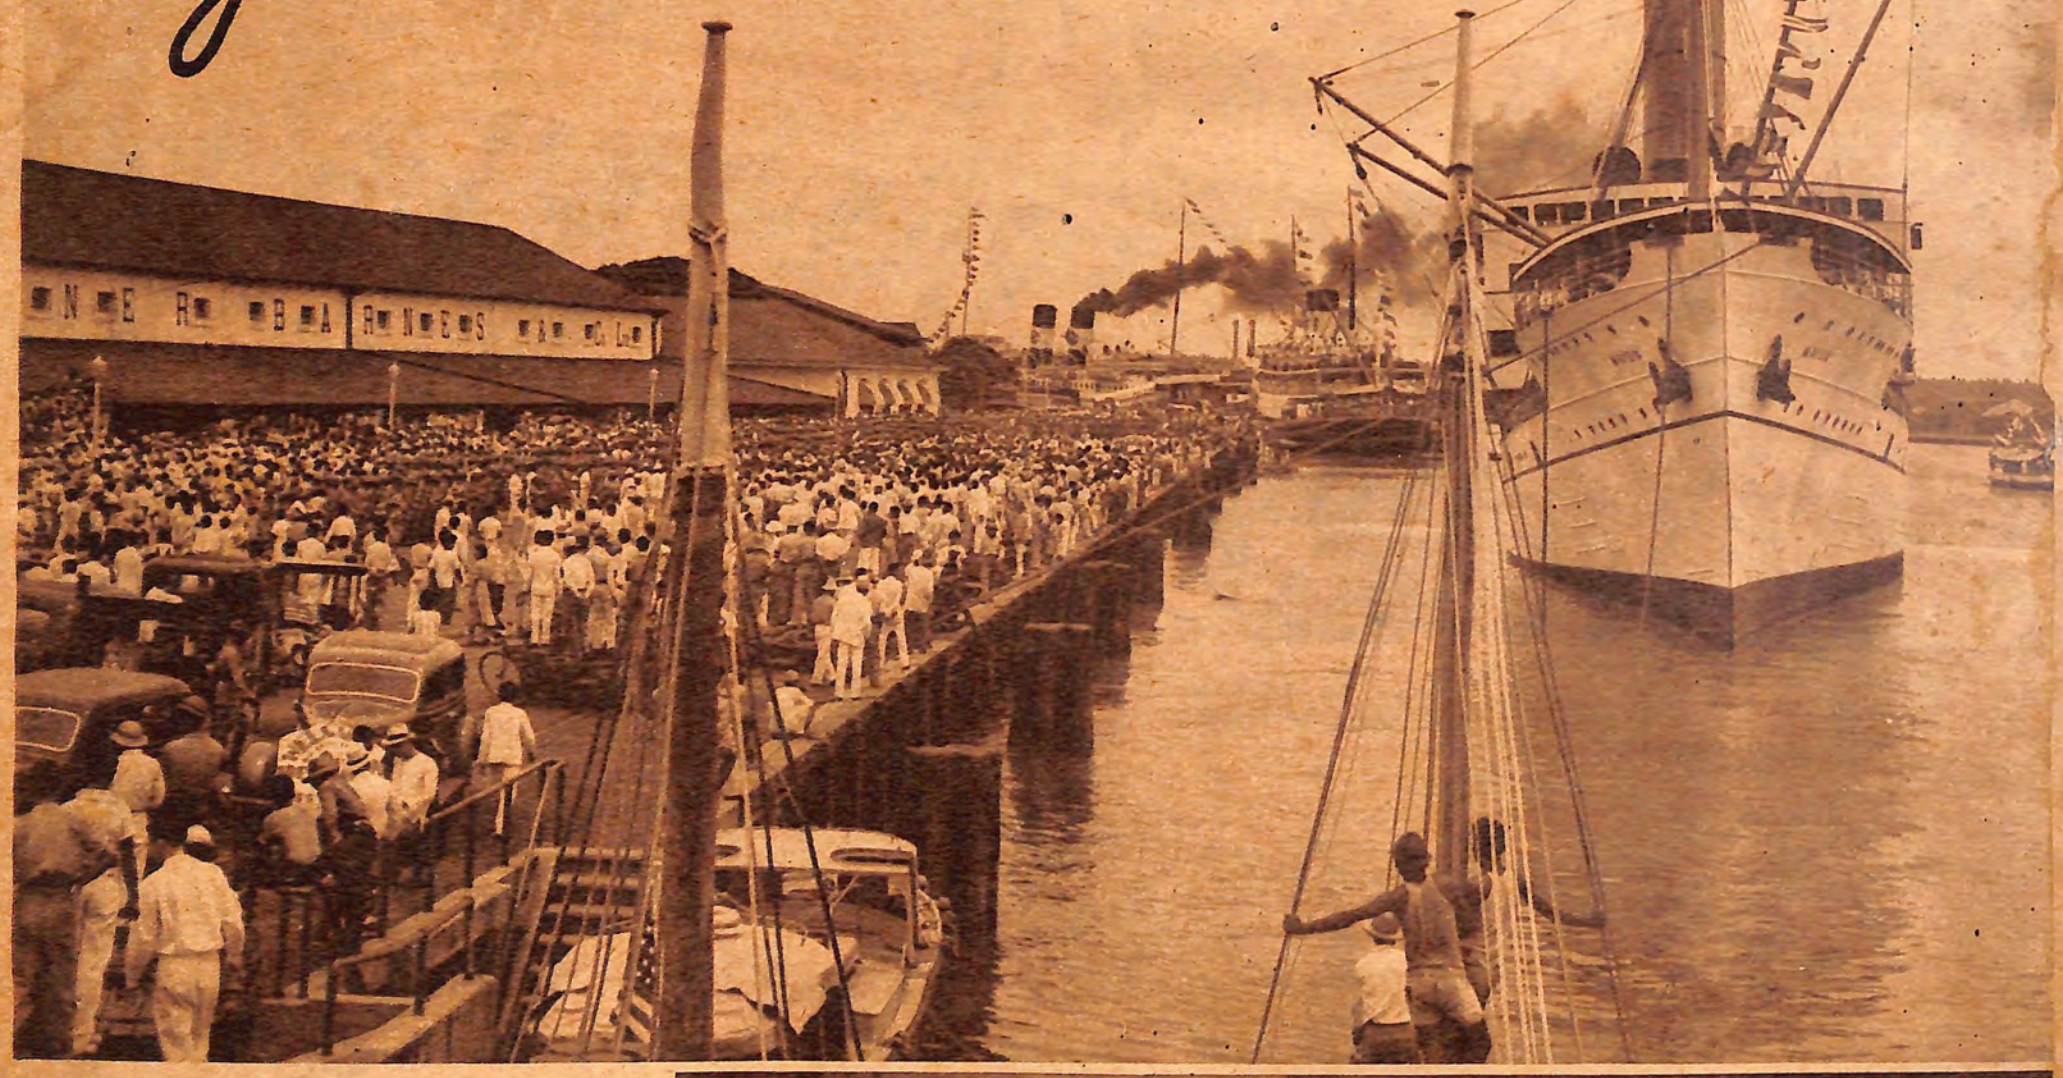

"There are many millionaires in Iloilo, Negros and Pampanga as a result of the sugar industry. The government demands that this prosperity be shared with the working men. Very little, if any, has gone into the hands of labor out of the immense sugar profits. Unless central owners and producers raise wages and treat labor better, the government may lose interest in the defense of the sugar industry. We can't be servants of the privileged classes, we are servants of the whole people. We shall not permit injustices.

"Unless the sugar industry raises wages, I shall ask the National Assembly to compel it to do so.

"We are living in an age in which civilized society can only endure if justice is equally accorded to the rich and poor. Those who have can hope to keep what they have if they share it with those working for them."

Impressed, Ambassador MacMurray remarked:

"Very interesting and very courageous!"

Präsident Quezon in Berlin, 6.—8. VII. 1937

Señor Manuel Quezon ist bekanntlich der erste Präsident der Commonwealth Philippinen; des jüngsten Staates im Fernen Osten, der am 15. November 1935 feierlich ausgerufen wurde. An diesem Tage, an dem Präsident Quezon und Vizepräsident Osmeña im Hause der Gesetzgebung in Manila den Amtseid leisteten und die Regierungsgeschäfte übernahmen, sah Quezon seine große politische Aufgabe, für die er jahrzehntelang unermüdlich gekämpft hatte, von Erfolg gekrönt: Aus den Philippinen wurde ein selbständiger Staat. Zwar ist das Werk noch nicht vollendet, weil die absolute Unabhängigkeit erst im Jahre 1946 erreicht werden wird und die Philippinen bis zu diesem Zeitpunkt im „Stadium der beschränkten Unabhängigkeit" unter der Oberherrschaft der Vereinigten Staaten bleiben, aber die große Entscheidung im Kampfe um die Unabhängigkeit ist jedenfalls bereits zugunsten der Philippinen ausgefallen, und alles weitere sind Fragen der Ueberleitung und Ausführung. Allerdings stehen dabei Probleme zur Erörterung, deren Schwierigkeiten nicht verkannt werden dürfen. Präsident Quezon selbst ist mit einer großen Anzahl philippinischer Politiker der Ansicht, daß den Interessen des neuen Staates am besten gedient wird, wenn an Stelle des zehnjährigen Zwischenstadiums eine wesentlich kürzere Obergangszeit festgesetzt würde. In diesem Sinne hat er kürzlich in Washington verhandelt und der amerikanischen Regierung den Vorschlag unterbreitet, bereits Ende dieses oder Mitte nächsten Jahres die völlige Unabhängigkeit beginnen zu lassen und die „Philippinische Republik" zu errichten.

Seinen Aufenthalt in Amerika hat Präsident Quezon Anfang Juli unterbrochen, um eine kurze Reise nach Europa zu unternehmen. Mit dem Dampfer „Bremen" hat er sich nach Cherbourg begeben und ist von dort nachdem er in Paris Zwischenstation gemacht hatte, nach Berlin weitergereist. Am 6. Juli traf er dann zu einem zweitägigen Besuch auf dem Bahnhof Friedrichstraße in Berlin ein, wo er von Legationsrat Boltze als Vertreter des Chefs des Protokolls des Auswärtigen Amts, Legationsrat v. Schmieden von der Ostasienabteilung des Auswärtigen Amts sowie von einigen Herren der amerikanischen Botschaft in Berlin, Botschaftsrat Dr. Ferdinand Lathrop Mayer, Militärattaché Major Smith, und Botschaftssekretär Jakob D. Beam begrüßt wurde. In der Begleitung des Präsidenten befanden sich seine Gattin, seine Kinder sowie sein Adjutant, Major Nieto.

Obwohl die zur Verfügung stehende Zeit außerordentlich beschränkt war, da Präsident Quezon bereits in den Abendstunden des 8. Juli Berlin wieder verließ, um nach Paris zurückzufahren und mit der „Bremen" die Rückfahrt nach Amerika anzutreten, hat Präsident Quezon Gelegenheit gehabt, mit führenden Persönlichkeiten von Staat und Partei in Verbindung zu treten und eine Anzahl ihn besonders interessierender Einrichtungen im neuen Deutschland zu besichtigen. Unter anderem fand ein Essen in einem Lager des Reichsarbeitsdienstes statt, dessen Aufbau und Ziele er persönlich kennenlernen wünschte. Die Erziehung der Jugend zu einem Land- und die Schaffung einer eigenen Wehrmacht rechnet er zu den vordringlichsten Hauptaufgaben auch seines neuen Staates. Mit lebhaftem Interesse wohnte er der Ablösung der Wache vor dem Ehrenmal Unter den Linden bei. Zu den Zeichen der verschiedenen Besuche und Besichtigungen fand ein Empfang beim Herrn Reichsminister für Volksaufklärung und Propaganda, Dr. Goebbels, statt. Reichsminister Dr. Schacht gab zu Ehren Präsident Quezons ein Essen, an dem Vertreter der Reichsregierung, der Partei und der Wehrmacht teilnahmen. Reichsminister Dr. Rust gab zu Ehren des Präsidenten im Hotel Adlon ein Frühstück, das Herr von Mackensen zu Ehren des Präsidenten im Hotel Adlon gab, herrlich will kommen. An dem Essen nahmen u. a. teil vom Auswärtigen Amt Gesandter Fürst Bismarck, Vortragender Legationsrat Beazley, Legationsrat von Schmieden, Legationsrat Boltze, Legationsrat Graf Strachwitz, der Stadtkommandant von Berlin, Generalmajor Seifert, Militärattaché Smith, die Herren de Vivanco, Lorenz-Meyer und Dr. Richter vom Ostasiatischen Verein Hamburg-Bremen.

Wir hoffen daß dieser allerdings nur kurze Besuch, der den Präsidenten nach 26 Jahren zum zweitenmal nach Deutschland führte, dazu beitragen wird, die Beziehungen zwischen Deutschland und den Philippinen, die im letzten Jahre durch eine bemerkenswerte Intensivierung des Warenhandels zwischen beiden Ländern einen starken Aufschwung erfahren haben, noch mehr zu entwickeln. Wie wir erfahren haben, werden schon im Laufe der nächsten Zeit mehrere Vertreter der philippinischen Regierung und Wirtschaft studienhalber für mehrere Monate nach Deutschland kommen, um hier Untersuchungen anzustellen, die später in der Heimat nutzbringend verwertet werden sollen.

Señor Manuel Quezon is the first President of the Philippine Commonwealth, the newest of the Far Eastern States, the formation of which was solemnly proclaimed on November 15th, 1935. On that day, President Quezon and Vice-President Osmeña were officially sworn in at the Manila House of Legislature, after which they immediately formed a government. Thus, the great work to which the new President had untiringly devoted all his energy for several decades was crowned with success, and his native country secured its independence. It is quite true that the work is not yet completed, inasmuch as complete independence will not be achieved until 1946 and as the Islands will remain under the political control of the United States during the intervening period, their status being that of "qualified independence". Nevertheless, the great decision in the struggle for independence has already been made and has turned out in favour of the Philippines, and the matters that have still to be attended to are merely concerned with the precise form in which the final independence is to be brought about. Certain problems, of course, will still have to be solved; and it would be a mistake to ignore the difficulties connected with them. President Quezon and a large number of Philippine politicians are of the opinion that it would be of considerable advantage to the new State if the interval of ten years could be materially reduced. He has already taken this matter up with the Washington authorities and suggested to them, a short while ago, that complete independence should be proclaimed towards the end of the present year or some time next summer and that the „Philippine Republic" should be thus definitely created.

Early in July the President interrupted his stay at Washington in order to pay a short visit to Europe. He went to Cherbourg on board the s.s. "Bremen", after which he first went to Paris and then to Berlin. He arrived there on July 6th and was welcomed at Friedrichstrasse Station by Herr Boltze, Counsellor of Legation, representing the Head of the Etiquette Department of the Foreign Office; Herr v. Schmieden, Counsellor of Legation, representing the Far East Division of the Foreign Office, and several gentlemen representing the American Embassy in Berlin, including: Dr. Ferdinand Lathrop Mayer, Counsellor of Embassy, Major Smith, military attaché, and Jacob D. Beam, Secretary of Embassy. The President was accompanied by Señora Quezon, his children, and his aid-de-camp, Major Nieto.

Although President Quezon's stay in Berlin was very brief (having to catch the evening train for Paris on the second day after his arrival in order to be able to return to the United States by the s.s. "Bremen") he had an opportunity of getting into touch with some prominent Statesand party officials and of visiting several institutions in the new Germany that were of particular interest to him. His programme included a visit to one of the National

This was President Quezon's second visit to Germany — a country which he had already visited 26 years ago. Cultural and economic relations between Germany and the Philippines have been remarkably intensified in recent years, and trade has undergone a notable improvement. We trust that the President's visit, brief though it was, will lead to a still further intensification. It is interesting to note in this connection that several representatives of the Philippine Government and the country's national economy intend to proceed to Germany in the very near future and that they will stay for several months in order to study conditions on the spot.

From "Baby" To Maria Aurora — Today's Story In Pictures —

By Yay Panlilio of the Herald

Today, on her 18th birthday, Maria Aurora Quezon drops her childhood nickname "Baby," and becomes a lady. Always by birth, by breeding and by inclination that, until today she was not legally so. Now, in the eyes of even the law, she is a full-fledged lady.

On the balcony at the breakfast that followed the mass heard in the Malacañan chapel, her loving father read her his letter of felicitation and paternal advice. Both Maria Aurora and Archbishop Michael O'Doherty were deeply moved, but when the President himself winked back the tears...

Mrs. Quezon, Maria Aurora's gentle, wistful mother, was too overcome for words and began to dab frantically at her own tears. Father Edwin, to the right of the first lady, listened to the letter with even greater concentration than Nini, who kept a stern eye on Nonong.

To break the sentimental tension, the small group of friends with whom the Quezon girls often eat, sleep, think, dance, argue and study started to skylark. Miss Elizabeth Canettenont, the French governess, swept Evelyn Fabella off the floor and let her struggle and squeal...

Special plans are afoot for tonight, it seems, but no formal party. There were admonitions this morning not to forget and promises to remember. In the above conference are Nena Nieto, Maria Aurora Quezon, Nini Quezon, Evelyn Fabella and Lili Canettemont. Now, if those aren't plans...

Herald 9-23-37

The above pictures aren't worth anything now, but some day, a score of year's hence, they'll rate a little blue ribbon to tie in a bundle with a pressed rose for remembrance. When all the water has gone under the bridge, and there are certain young ladies wondering what mother looked like in her young days...

Social Justice... ₱100,000,000... Independence

STANDING ON A SPECIAL PLATFORM apart from the Speaker's rostrum and patterned after those in other parliaments, President Quezon delivered his message to the National Assembly at the opening of its regular session last Monday afternoon... Social justice and how to promote it with part of the hundred million oil excise money... compulsory primary education... independence in 1939...

"I COULD WISH for no better U. S. High Commissioner in the Philippines than His Excellency Paul V. McNutt..."

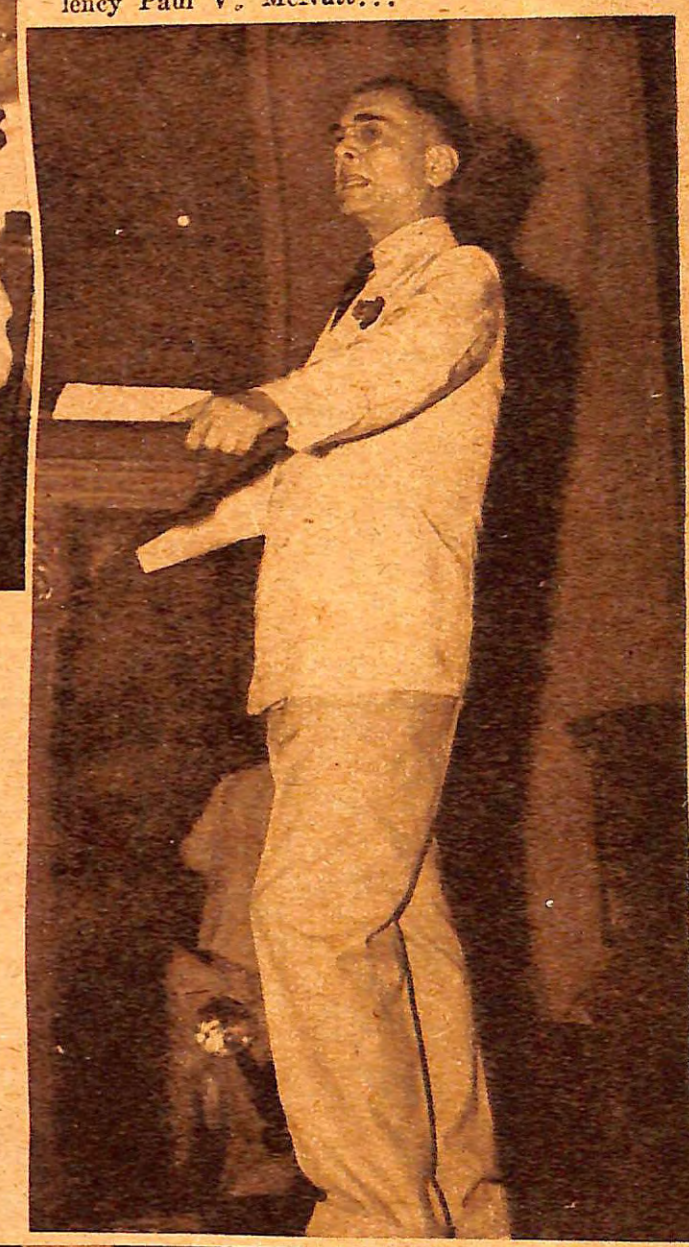

AS THE PRESIDENT'S speech progresses, Ambassador John Van A. MacMurray, Chief Justice Avanceña, General Paulino Santos and other dignitaries (right) strike various attitudes...

Right. — "WE MAY NOT GO DOWN in history as statesmen. But let us strive to deserve the title of friends of the poor—the highest title to which any man can aspire..."

PARTLY FOR THE BENEFIT of foreign consuls (left), the President tells the Assembly that "the reports of the respective committees and the speeches upon the floor of both houses of Congress clearly show that this (transition period) was not a commitment addressed to foreigners having investments in the Philippines..."

EX-MAYOR POSADAS and department under-secretaries occupy the right side of the Assembly Hall. Among them are Under-Secretaries Camus of agriculture, Melencio of justice...

WHAT IS IN A TITLE?—Photo shows Assemblyman Ombra of Sulu, Assemblyman Cabili of Lanao, and President Quezon after discussing today in Malacañan whether or not Moro titles should be abolished. They reached the agreement that, in a democratic country, titles do not amount to such a much. Result: titled Moros may remain titled, especially if their monickers are just religious handles. And as Datu Ombra says, the state and the church are not only separate but there is here and in moroland freedom of religion.

FOTO HEADLINES IN P. I.: FOR THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY, A MASTER'S VOICE

PRESIDENT QUEZON SPEAKS. . . .

. . . THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY HEARS

EARLY INDEPENDENCE and Social Justice have lately been President Quezon's favorite political songhits. In a speech remarkable for its sane statesmanship the President once again Monday afternoon, Oct. 18, before the Assembly enlarged on these two crackerjacks, drove home his points with telling effect. Attended by bigwigs was the gathering which was supposed to have opened the regular session of the legislature.

Emphasized President Quezon: "An opportunity has been given us that no past or coming generation has had or will ever have—that of creating a nation where there will be no privileged class, where poverty will be unknown. . . ." On the traditional cry for independence he pontificated: "My own firm conviction is that it is better for the Filipino people to be independent now . . . rather than in 1946." He said he saw no reason why, "if the Philippines can be given independence in 1946, she may not be granted it in 1938 or 1939."

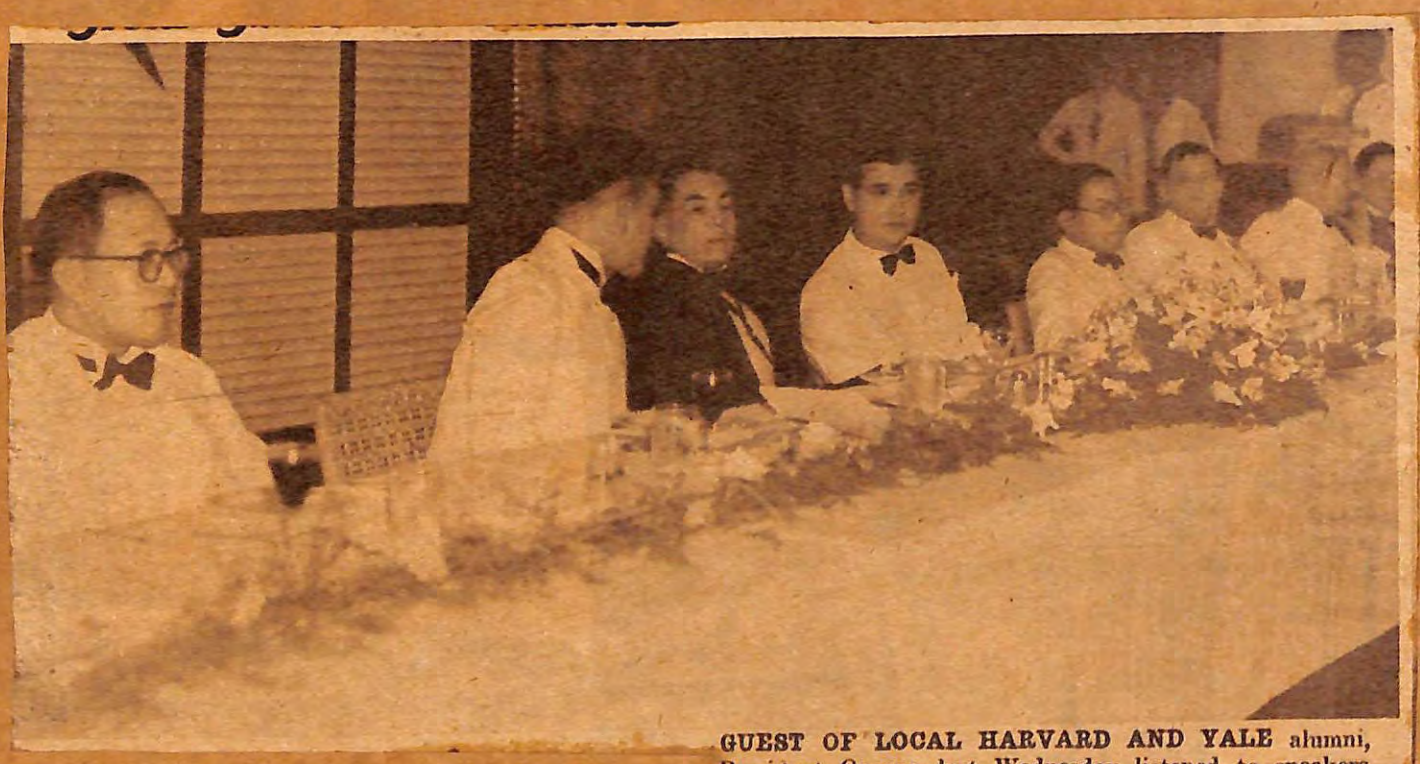

Given the nut to crack, several assemblymen a few days after Quezon's speech drafted multifarious resolutions favoring early freedom for the Philippines. Also subject to speculation was possibility of creating an upper legislative chamber, members of which are to be elected at large.

FOR THE PEOPLE: A TOAST FROM THE PRESIDENT ON SOCIAL JUSTICE.

FOREIGN CONSULS-GENERAL for Manila attended the session, among them (see foto) Italy's Count Luigi Gabrielle di San Marzano, Japan's Kiyoshi Uchiyama, Portugal's Angelo da Costa, China's Dr. Yuan Tan Tu, France's Gaston Willoquet, Germany's Gustav Adolf Sakowsky, and Great Britain's William Percy Whitford Turner. Others in the picture are former U. S. Senator Harry Bartow Hawes (Mo.), Experts Joseph E. Jacobs and Louis Domeratzky, of Philippine-American joint trade committee. All in all, it was a most imposing congregation. Foto News 10-31-37

MILITARY PARADE IS CHEERED BY 40,000 PEOPLE

The Army in Review

A brilliant military parade, featuring the full strength of the Philippine army, was the high spot in Manila's observance of the second anniversary of the commonwealth Monday. Above, at the left, the commanders of the Philippine Military Academy detachment from Baguio march smartly by the reviewing stand (right) in which Vice-President Osmeña, High Commissioner McNutt, President Quezon, Field Marshal MacArthur and Chief of Staff Paulino Santos are standing.

DRESSED in barong tagalog, President Quezon reviewed about 15,000 Philippine Army soldiers, trainees and R.O.T.C. cadets, addressed the nation. To U. S. High Commissioner Paul McNutt he declared: "It is your Army, not only because under the Independence Act the President of the United States may place it under your command but also because the Filipino people will gladly do it in recognition of what you have done for us." Apprehensive over the fate of unfortunate nations under the mercy of more powerful ones, the President lauded America's work in the Philippines as "the beacon light pointing the way to a distressed humanity out of the threatening universal disaster." He found time to say it was not right for the government to collect the cedula tax because it violates the cardinal principle of taxation, expressed the hope that the Philippines would be able to build a government that would command the respect and confidence of Filipinos and foreigners.

VESTIDO como uno del pueblo, el caudillo se dirige al pueblo, reiterando la justicia social, el reconocimiento del derecho de cada ciudadano a la vida. Gestos y actitudes del Presidente Quezon, reproducidos en instantáneas tomadas mientras pronunciaba su discurso en la Luneta, en el segundo aniversario de la Mancomunidad.

Second Anniversary

"IN AN AGE when defenseless nations are in constant dread of their very existence, America's withdrawal stands as a beacon light... Our first thought is of America.. We are building a government that will not try to make the rich wealthier but will seek to improve the lot of the poor... The government should see to it that the masses get what is due them... President Quezon himself should never forget his social justice policy..."—PRESIDENT QUEZON, inset, addressing the MASSES on the Luneta during the celebration of the Second Anniversary of the Commonwealth, last Monday.

Commonwealth Molave

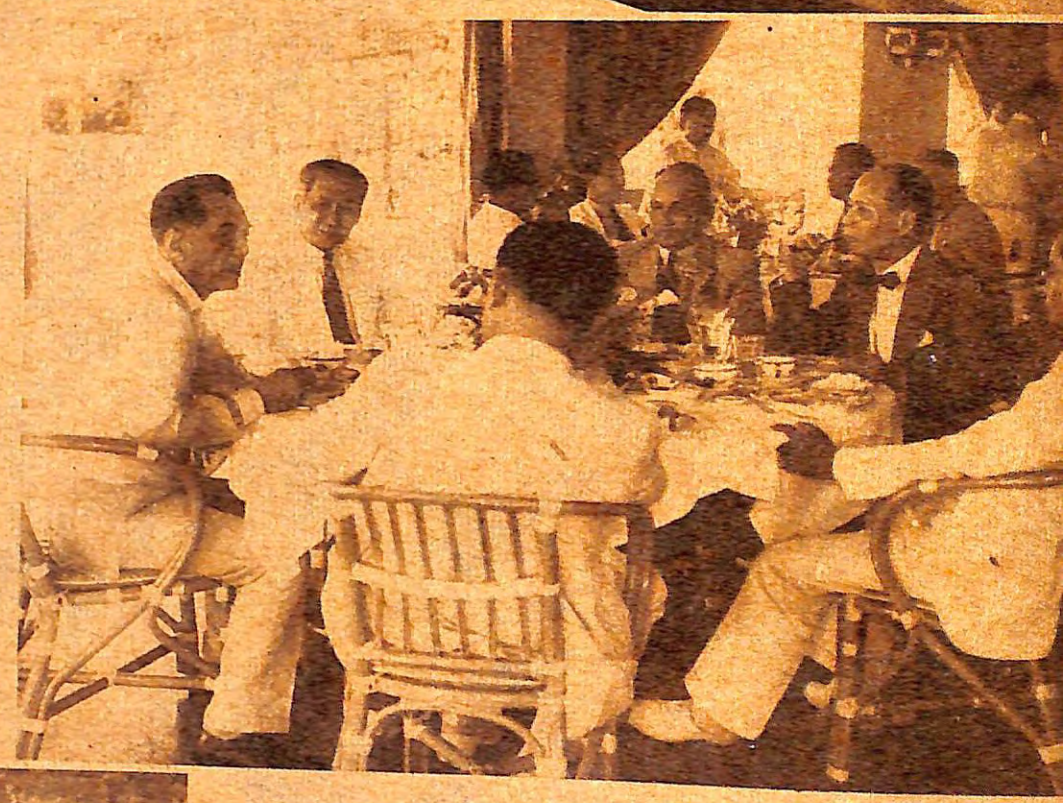

FIVE POSES stressing praise of America, ambitions for a stable Philippine Republic, and the government's duty towards the poor —Social Justice,. which "even President Quezon himself," according to the President in his Second Anniversary speech, "should never forget..."

AFTER WHICH, shovel in hand and while the world looked at him, Speaker Montilla (left) planted a two-year old molave tree behind the Legislative Building that it might, like the Commonwealth, grow up into a sturdy tree...

THE DAY FOLLOWING, the President dined his former colleagues in the defunct senate (right) to sound their opinion on the proposed change from the unicameral legislature to a bicameral form, as in the good old days... also the plan to reduce the President's term from six to four years, but allowing a reelection for a second term...

Bicameral?

No Cornerstone!

NO CORNERSTONE, because no building may be erected on the historic Intramuros Walls—even if it be for the Philippine Boy Scouts Headquarters. The President was very nearly humoured into laying the cornerstone but, when everything was set for the ceremonies, he felt that something was rotten somewhere and said: "We are going to preserve the Muralla and what it stands for... Choose a site that will afford you all the facilities and I shall willingly help you build your headquarters..."

The Gay Fireworks Of Last Night

WITNESSED BY THOUSANDS of people, the fireworks display last night on the New Luneta brought to a successful close the second celebration of the Commonwealth anniversary. The display emulated myriads of stars let down from heaven. The Commonwealth coat-of-arms, in multicolors, was the leading display (pictured in the center).
